MISCELLANEOUS SLOGANS

Paranoid slogans

"Just because you're paranoid, doesn't mean they're not out to get you" (popular at theme parks)
One I like which combines political and paranoid style is to make a cage out of paper and sit inside it.

Quote your friends, or people you overhear

"You can't do this to me"
"But he's such a good person"
"I don't want to get off my tits, engage in substance abuse, facilitate poor decision making and generate bad memories"

Slogans that seem deeply meaningful but leave a lot to interpretation
These are usually the best ones

"I am a man" (1968 sanitation workers' strike in Memphis)
"Don't be on the wrong side of history."
"Remember to stay hydrated."

Suggestions for what to write on walls t shirts scrolls pieces of paper and other objects in case
you run out of ideas

Anything can be a slogan if you repeat it incessantly

Or you can always blame someone else. "The patriotic favour free healthcare."

Kill you."

"We demand free meals, healthcare, everything, give it to us or we will

For the true Frankfurt school aficionado who wants to be classy, there is always the option of quoting Hegel. If you are feeling "neither Washington nor Moscow" and want a way to express your anomie, this works.

"Der Geist ist ein Knochen" / "Spirit is a bone"

Make sure to use a photograph of their face on the T shirt.

Free [person's name]

This gives you lots of good options. Some things, like 'love,' are sentimental humanitarianism which gives a sense that the beautiful soul is being persecuted. Others, like 'running people down with your car,' are less clear. Lifestyle offenses can often be treated as crimes. You can do something political like abortion, sexuality or race. One person wrote, 'Being clever is not a crime!' and was immediately persecuted.

"X is not a crime!"

POLITICAL SLOGANS

LIFESTYLE SLOGANS

Product slogans:

"So thick / smooth / juicy!" (think sexual)

Dating slogans:

"I like dogs"

"I'm spontaneous"

"Enjoy life" (this one doubles as a product slogan)

Identity slogans:

"I am not your X"

This is an all-purpose oppression buster, for when you are feeling oppressed. Remember to tell them they have no idea about the real you!

Sexual slogans:

CALL THIS NUMBER FOR A GOOD TIME
